

Basel Declaration: Call for more trust, transparency and communication in animal research

1. Introduction:

Animal research plays a crucial role in progress scientifically and medical. However, the use their elevate question ethical and morals. It is essential that researchers saddle adopt practice responsible, be transparent and saddle contributor active with the public for A ensure trust and welfare the animals involved.

2. Fundamental principles:

- Trust and Transparency: Researchers must to be open in regard use animals, explaining need and research methods.
- WELFARE animals: Respect the many good practice for protection animal and minimize suffering.
- 3R Principles: Reduction number of animals, refinement proceeding to diminish suffering and replace animal experiments with alternative methods then when is possible.

3. Calls to action:

- Transparency in research: Publication methods and results research.
- investment in alternatives: Supporting Research for developing methods that replace the animals.
- Collaboration Global: Sharing the many good practice and standard international for protection animals.

4. Commitments:

The signatories commit themselves saddle use animals in a responsible way, to support the development of alternatives and saddle improving communication with the public.

5. Impact expected:

By applying these principles, researchers will contribute to research may ethics, to improve welfare animal and to a trust larger audience in research scientific.

This research was not conducted using animals

Signature